

Cinderella's Royal Wedding

With a slipper charm necklace to treasure forever

This edition published by Parragon Books Ltd in 2014

Parragon Books Ltd
Chartist House
15–17 Trim Street
Bath BA1 1HA, UK
www.parragon.com

Copyright © 2014 Disney Enterprises, Inc.

Written by Susan Amerikaner
Illustrated by The Disney Storybook Artists

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the prior permission of the copyright holder.

ISBN 978-1-4723-3378-0

Printed in China

Cinderella's Royal Wedding

PaRRagon

Bath • New York • Cologne • Melbourne • Delhi
Hong Kong • Shenzhen • Singapore • Amsterdam

A colorful illustration of Prince Charming proposing to Cinderella. Prince Charming, with dark hair and a mustache, is kneeling and holding an open purple ring box. Cinderella, with blonde hair and a blue and brown dress, is looking at him with a surprised expression. In the background, there is a castle with a tower, a garden with pink roses, and two blue birds flying in the sky. Two mice are also visible on a balcony in the upper right corner.

Prince Charming had found the woman he truly loved – Cinderella.

“Will you marry me?” he asked her, and waited for the answer.

"Cinderelly says yes-yes!"
shouted Gus.

The king was thrilled to hear the news.
He showed Cinderella a portrait in the hall.

“This was my wife on our wedding day,” he said.
“And you shall wear the same thing. It is a royal family tradition!”

Cinderella quietly looked at the queen’s portrait.
She did not want to disappoint the king.

But following family tradition wasn't easy with so many royal helpers trying to make Cinderella look just right. Luckily, the Grand Duke had a plan....

“Royal traditions – all you need to know,” said the Grand Duke, as he brought Cinderella a pile of books.

Cinderella read and read, trying to remember everything. Finally, she fell asleep and began to dream....

In her dream, Cinderella saw her mother, who had passed away many years ago.

“Cinderella my love,” her mother said.

“This necklace will remind you that whenever you have a problem, if you listen to your heart, it will lead you to the answer.”

When Cinderella awoke, the dream of her mother filled her with the warmth of love. She began to search through some of her old things.

With the help of the Fairy Godmother, Cinderella soon found what she was looking for – a portrait of her mother on her wedding day.

Cinderella showed the portrait to the royal dressmaker.
“You make such beautiful dresses. Would it be possible for you to make me a dress like this?”

The dressmaker bowed his head.
“I would be honoured.”

Next Cinderella visited the royal jeweller. "You are a great artist. Do you think it would be possible to combine two necklaces into one?"

"For you I shall create the finest necklace in the kingdom!" the jeweller replied.

The royal wedding day arrived and the king came to see Cinderella.

“I hope you don’t mind,” said Cinderella. “This is a copy of my mother’s wedding dress. It honours my family tradition. And with my necklace and veil, I also honour yours, your Majesty.”

The king saw that his queen's pearls had been used to make the wedding necklace and veil.

“Oh my dear girl, this is a great honour. You have blended the treasures of two families – and created a new tradition for our new family!”

The king proudly offered Cinderella his arm.

“Let’s not keep the Prince waiting,” he said.

A happy king led Cinderella down the aisle. The guests were thrilled! The Prince was enchanted by his beautiful bride. Even the Grand Duke wiped a tear from his eye!

Cinderella and the Prince answered the question that all brides and grooms must answer.

“They do! They do!” shouted Gus.

After the ceremony, everyone enjoyed a wonderful banquet of delicious food and drink.

The wedding cake was a piece of art! Cinderella's friends, the mice, had helped to bake and decorate it.

The bride and groom cut the first slice and all the guests cheered.

Cinderella tossed the bouquet so that the female guests could try to catch it. Tradition says that whoever catches the bouquet will be the next to marry.

The stepsisters were both so eager that they crashed into each other and missed the bouquet completely! But they didn't mind too much – everyone had a wonderful evening, dancing and celebrating.

And so, by following tradition –
but also her heart – Cinderella had the wedding day of her dreams.

Cinderella has found her true love and soon they will be married. But will Cinderella's special day be as perfect as she has imagined? Pleasing everybody and following family tradition is a difficult task!

Enjoy this delightful tale
and wear your beautiful charm necklace.